REDUCES QUOTAS TO 2 PER CENT

Johnson Immigration Bill to Pass House This Week.

DEBATE CLOSES TUESDAY NIGHT

Measure Provides For Overseas Examination of Prospective Immigrants and Would Bar Japanese From the United States—Senate Finance Committee Makes Changes in Taxes on Radio Sets.

Washington, April 7.—Under an agreement the house will conclude debate on the Johnson immigration bill tomorrow night.

The immigration measure pending in the senate and the Johnson bill both would reduce quotas to 2 per cent, but base them on the 1910 census. They are designed to supplant the present restrictive immigration law, which expires June 30. The existing law provides 3 per cent quotas based on the 1910 census. The Johnson bill provides for overseas examination of prospective immigrants and would probably bar Japanese from the United States. In the course of debate several members urged exclusion of Japanese. No one attacked this feature of the bill.

Chairman Johnson of the immigration committee declared that it is the intention of the bill to establish a border patrol, with authority to enforce immigration, customs, health, liquor, narcotic and all other laws. With this out of the way, Johnson said, the United States will be in a position to regulate immigration from Mexico and Canada, both of which countries are anxious that we should act. Johnson declared the bill "preserves all of the treaties of the United States, including that with Japan," and "that country's face is not saved, as she is not given a quota, and in my opinion, to give Japan a quota would result in a great deal more trouble than will the mere abrogation of the 'gentlemen's agreement,' which becomes quite necessary if this bill becomes a law."

Changes in Tax Bill.

Changes were made by the senate finance committee, which is revising the house revenue bill, in the taxes on radio sets, jewelry and estates. The 10 per cent radio tax was made applicable to all sets and parts without exemption after the committee had voted to increase from $15 to $50 the minimum price of a set on which the tax would be levied. This and the 10 per cent tax on Mah Jong sets costing more than $5 are the only new taxes carried by the bill. The taxes are levied on the manufacturer. The radio tax, Chairman Smoot declared would not result in an increase in the price of the sets and parts to consumers. Just which parts will be taxed, however, will be left to the jurisdiction of the internal revenue bureau, as in the case of the tax on automobile parts, Smoot said. He figured the tax would net about $10,000,000.

Senator Simmons, ranking Democrat on the finance committee, declared the minority members would propose changes in about a dozen provisions of the bill outside of the income tax rate schedules.

MICHIGAN VOTES TODAY

Primaries to Be Held This Week in Three Midwestern States.

Chicago, April 7.—Primaries will be held this week in Illinois, Michigan and Nebraska. In Michigan today Republican voters are expressing their preference. President Coolidge and Senator Hiram Johnson being the candidates. Senator Ferris is on the ballot with Henry Ford, who has not withdrawn his name. William G. McAdoo is entered only in Illinois, where his opponents have an "uninstructed delegate" slate entered. Nebraska and Michigan have "favorite son" Democrats, unopposed. Senator Johnson has made an active campaign in the three states and his managers express themselves as confident of a decisive victory in each of them. Particular attention has been directed to Illinois, a center of Johnson strength in former years. With President Coolidge's managers already claiming 377 convention delegates, victory in Michigan with 33 delegates, in Illinois with 61 and in Nebraska with 19, would give him a total of 490, or but 65 short of a convention majority.

TWO PERSONS KILLED, SCORE WOUNDED

Arrests Made Following a Clash
With Klansmen.

Lilly, Pa., April 7.—Philip T. Conrad, 25, and Floyd Paul, 28, were killed, and 20 others were wounded by shots said to have been fired by a group of klansmen, who were passing through here on a special train. The klansmen detained and held a ceremony at a field near the town. They were at the station ready to enter again when the shooting occurred. Some residents of the town played a stream of water from the town fire hose upon the visitors as they were marching back to the station.

Four arrests have been made by the authorities here. Members of the state police are investigating the outbreak. At Johnstown 25 men are being held. About 45 pistols were taken from the special train after its arrival at Johnstown, according to Sheriff Kellar, who declared that some were found upon the men arrested while others were in the cars. Many of the klansmen left the train at stops between Lilly and Johnstown, he said.

When the firing began all but a group of 50 had boarded the train. The loading of the train continued, as bullets whistled through the air and stones and other missiles were hurled from all directions.

SURVEY SHOWS PROSPERITY

Exports and Imports Greater Last
Year Than in 1922.

OUTLOOK HELD ENCOURAGING

Department of Commerce Says the United States Strengthened Its Position as a World Depository Last Year—Country May Play More Important Part in Financial World Enterprises.

Washington, April 7.—Exports from the United States in 1923 were $341,000,000 greater than in 1922 and imports were $706,000,000 more the same year, according to a summary issued by the department of commerce.

The summary says the United States strengthened its position as a world depository in 1923, as the "flight of capital" continued from the unstable economic conditions of the Old World. In the future, the department predicted this country will take a more and more important part in financing world enterprises.

Invisible trade played an influential part in the balance of the books. There is no government record for "invisible" transactions. The "invisible" items last year were such as to cut to $19,000,000 a balance of $389,000,000 in favor of the United States in the transactions passing through the customs houses. Included in the "invisible" items was an estimated $30,000,000 in smuggled liquors.

The commerce department's survey said that ocean freight appeared to be the only commodity for which the United States paid foreigners more than it received. On the other hand, foreign investments brought $394,000,000 into the United States, a net increase of one-fifth over 1922.

The United States will take a more active part in financing world enterprises in the future than it has in the past, the survey intimates. This means an increasing amount of interest and profits on foreign investments, and consequently an increasing volume of imports, not necessarily from the countries in which the investments were made, but from the whole world. At the same time, with the growth of the country and the increasing skill of the bankers and exporters, it is likely that the exports will continue to increase, although not as fast as imports.

RIEDEL'S TERM EXPIRES

Donahey Accused by Republican Leaders of Playing Politics.

Columbus, April 7.—Republican state headquarters makes the charge that Governor Donahey is using the state department of education to further his political schemes and that he will delay the appointment of a new director of education until after election. Director Riegel's term expired Saturday. According to Major Charles W. Montgomery, chairman of the Republican state central committee, the governor is holding out hope to a number of school men in the state that they will be selected for the job, and has told them he will not make the appointment until after election. Friends of Riegel have been told the same thing, according to Montgomery's statement. George Dietrich of Piqua, Darrell Joyce of Hamilton, John Collins of Lima and W. W. Helter of Mansfield, all school superintendents, are named by Montgomery as candidates for Riegel's job.

TO PROBE RECORD OF DAUGHERTY

Anti-Trust Law Enforcement to Be Investigated.

COMMITTEE OUTLINES PLANS

Inquiry to Be Transferred at the End of the Week to Washington C. H.,
Ohio, Where Records of Midland
National Bank Will Be Scanned.
Motion to Cite Head of Bank Held in Suspension at Washington.

Washington, April 7.—Record of the department of justice in the matter of anti-trust law enforcement will be delved into this week by the senate Daugherty committee.

Senator Wheeler said that a number of witnesses will be examined during the week. The committee's agents have gone exhaustively into transactions by former Attorney General Daugherty touching upon anti-trust decisions against the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad.

The committee plans to transfer the inquiry to Washington C. H., O., at the end of the week to examine the records of the Midland National bank, operated by Mal S. Daugherty, brother of the former attorney general. Senator Wheeler and Senator Moses have been delegated to pursue the investigation there, while the committee holds in suspension a motion to cite M. S. Daugherty to the senate for contempt in failure to open the records of the bank fully to the committee.

In a letter to Chairman Brookhart, H. L. Scaife, former investigator for the department of justice, referred to recent statements of Guy D. Goff, former assistant attorney general, and George W. Wickersham of New York, challenging testimony which he has given during three appearances before the committee. He suggested in the letter that the proper place for a showdown will be on the witness stand, and not in gratuitous statements issued at long range by ex-employees of the department under investigation. He also suggested that both Wickersham and Goff be subpoenaed by the committee "to take the witness stand and be questioned as to the documents which have already been placed in the record" of its inquiry.

The committee has decided to go more deeply into the question of prohibition violations and punishment over the United States. The list of witnesses subpoenaed in this connection has been increased by volunteers and Gaston B. Means, former government agent, is still held in attendance to finish a story dealing with the subject.

DOINGS IN OHIO

Inspectors Not Involved.

Columbus, April 7.—Replying to statements to the effect that deputy auto inspectors appointed by him in auto registration supervision may have been involved in evasion of the truck weight limitations under the law, Secretary of State Thad H. Brown expressed the belief that the statements were not founded on fact. "From reports of the sheriffs of every county in Ohio I have yet to learn of one of these men having been arrested for violations of the law," he declared.

Steel Mill Operations.

Youngstown, O., April 7.—Slackening in steel mill operations in this district apparently has been checked, temporarily, at least, according to operating schedules for the week. While steel production will show a slight increase, operations of finishing mills will be curtailed somewhat, leaving the industry as a whole operating at about last week's figures, 85 per cent of capacity.

Fears Bootleggers' Ruse.

Cleveland, April 7.—Judge Thomas Green announced that he had been informed by friends that a warrant to enter his home had been issued by a justice of the peace. Judge Green recently sentenced two men for bootlegging, and now that their sentence is served, he believed they will seek revenge by attempting to plant liquor in his home and then have it raided.

Grocer Dead.

Springfield, O., April 7.—W. S. Meredith, chairman of the executive committee of the Ohio Wholesale Grocers' association and organizer of the oldest wholesale grocery house in Springfield, died of peritonitis at his home here. He was also a member and former officer in the National Wholesale Grocers' association.

Leaves Estate For Church.

Washington, C. H., O., April 7.—The will of Mrs. Nettie C. Chaffin, widow of the late Attorney Frank A. Chaffin, who died a few days ago, was probated, and practically all the $50,000 estate is left for a new Presbyterian church, to be erected in Hyde Park, Cincinnati.

Student Killed by Auto.

Columbus, April 7.—Francis Z. Wetnight, 21, of Springfield, O., sophomore student in the college of engineering, Ohio State university, died at University hospital as a result of injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile.

Man Slashed.

Cleveland, April 7.—Betty Moody of Canton is under arrest here. Police say she forced her way into Stiles Simmons' apartment and slashed Simmons across the face with a safety razor blade because he repulsed her attentions.

Woman May Recover.

Baltimore, April 7.—A young woman, found ill in the railway station here and taken to a hospital, where she gave her name as Catherine Frazier, Washington, and said she had swallowed poison, is reported improved. She refused to give the motive for her act beyond telling the matron at the railroad station that "he did not meet me," and that she had taken poison.

Auto Hit by Train.

Cincinnati, April 7.—Henry Scott was fatally and Albert Hoover severely hurt when their automobile was struck by a Norfolk and Western train at Mt. Orab, Brown county.

TO PROBE RECORD OF DAUGHTERY

Anti-Trust Law Enforcement to Be Investigated.

COMMITTEE OUTLINES PLANS

Inquiry to Be Transferred at the End of the Week to Washington C. H., Ohio, Where Records of Midland National Bank Will Be Scanned. Motion to Cite Head of Bank Held In Suspension at Washington.

Washington, April 7.—Record of the department of justice in the matter of anti-trust law enforcement will be delved into this week by the senate Daugherty committee.

Senator Wheeler said that a number of witnesses will be examined during the week. The committee's agents have gone exhaustively into transactions by former Attorney General Daugherty touching upon anti-trust decisions against the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad.

The committee plans to transfer the inquiry to Washington C. H., O., at the end of the week to examine the records of the Midland National bank, operated by Mal S. Daugherty, brother of the former attorney general. Senator Wheeler and Senator Moses have been delegated to pursue the investigation there, while the committee holds in suspension a motion to cite M. S. Daugherty to the senate for contempt in failure to open the records of the bank fully to the committee.

In a letter to Chairman Brookhart, H. L. Scaife, former investigator for the department of justice, referred to recent statements of Guy D. Goff, former assistant attorney general, and George W. Wickersham of New York, challenging testimony which he has given during three appearances before the committee. He suggested in the letter that the proper place "for a showdown will be on the witness' stand, and not in gratuitous statements issued at long range by ex-employees of the department under investigation." He also suggested that both Wickersham and Goff be subpoenaed by the committee "to take the witness stand and be questioned as to the documents which have already been placed in the record" of its inquiry.

The committee has decided to go more deeply into the question of prohibition violations and punishments over the United States. The list of witnesses subpoenaed in this connection has been increased by volunteers and Gaston B. Means, former government agent, is still held in attendance to finish a story dealing with the subject.

TO FORM ORGANIZATION

Co-operative Association For Marketing of Poultry Planned.

Columbus, April 7.—Organization of a co-operative association for marketing poultry and eggs for Ohio producers will be undertaken at once, F. M. Glasgow has been chosen by the Ohio Farm Bureau federation to direct the organization work. The announcement follows a recent meeting of representative poultry producers of nine counties in northwestern Ohio, in which the first co-operative marketing of poultry and eggs through an association is expected to be done. Decision to start this branch of co-operative effort in Ohio comes after an investigation committee of three had visited successful poultry associations. Obtaining of members and explanation of plans will be done by a committee consisting of E. M. Flackler and C. E. Greek of Williams county and Harry M. Pontius of Henry county, working with Mr. Glasgow. Sales of Ohio poultry and poultry products by standardizing on grade, shipping to best markets, and pooling of grade in prices to the producer, are planned.

Student on Trial.

Cincinnati, April 7.—Impaneling of a jury to try Halton P. Siddal, Equality (Ill.) dental student, on a charge of first degree murder of Juan Mazola of Panama, a fellow student, began here today.

Anton Lang Ill.

Philadelphia, April 7.—Anton Lang, the "Christus" of the Oberammergau Passion play, who has been visiting this city, is recuperating from a nasal hemorrhage, with which he was stricken last week. Lang will go to a convent near Atlantic City for a couple of days' rest with Mrs. Lang and Guido Mayr, the "Judas" in the sacred drama. They will join the remainder of the party in Boston.

BIG GAIN SHOWN

Workmen's Compensation Fund Now In Excess of $43,000,000.

Columbus, April 7.—State Treasurer Day announced a net gain of $2,258,528.25 in the total of the workmen's compensation fund of Ohio during the nine months ending March 31, 1924. Accretions to the insurance fund during the period amounted to $10,095,719.10, of which $3,124,684.17 was in actual premiums paid into the state treasury by employers, while $1,939,621.76 represents interest accruing on bonds, $30,479.65 interest paid by banks serving as active depositories and $933.52 in warrants collected.

Disbursements of $7,837,190.85 during the nine months included $7,744,280.86 in warrants redeemed and $92,909.99 accrued interest paid by the state in bonds purchased from subdivisions.

The fund now has in excess of $43,000,000 to its credit. During the past month alone $1,783,660.27 was paid in the form of premiums, bond interest for that month amounting to $12,314.01. Distributions during March totaled $989,402.69.

TROOPS IN MINING CAMP

Following Outbreak in Which Two Men Are Shot, One Fatally.

Louisville, Ky., April 7.—Following a fatal outbreak at the mining camp of the Liberty Coal and Coke company, in Bell county, Ky., two companies of the state national guard are on duty at the mines. Ten men participated in the labor outbreak and about 200 shots were fired. George Lucas was killed and Edward Dishman wounded. They were nonunion miners from Virginia. Trouble at Straight Creek had been brewing since the Liberty company recently resumed operations on a nonunion basis after a shutdown. The 1917 union scale was adopted as a rate of pay and eviction notices were posted against former employees who were occupying company houses without having returned to work.

Imitating Mahogany.

In the manufacture of furniture and cabinets a great deal of red gum is used as an imitation of mahogany or Circassian walnut, says the American Forestry Magazine. When red gum is properly finished it can be made to look much like either of these woods. There is a very distinct difference, however, between red gum and mahogany or walnut. This difference lies in the size of the pores.

Dreams.

To dream of a snake denotes treachery; a black snake signifies disease; a green snake is a good omen to farmers, but to others it foretells loss of money by unfortunate investments. A rattlesnake in a dream means that one who pretends to be a friend is secretly endeavoring to ruin your reputation. To fight snakes means you will outwit your enemies and succeed in what you have undertaken.

Evidence of Prehistoric People Found in Desert

It was last fall that "The Vast Unknown," a region of mystery in Utah, was explored for the first time by an expedition of the National Geographic society in charge of Neil M. Judd of the department of American anthropology of the National museum. Mr. Judd and his assistants spent two months in complete isolation in this unknown section of Utah. During that time they did not see a single wild animal and the only traces of human beings were remains of prehistoric Indians.

Through signs placed on the rocks thousands of years ago by ancient Indians, Mr. Judd was enabled to find trails over many difficult places. A number of habitations of prehistoric people were found in canyons.

The present Indians have a horror of the locality and tell many strange tales about it. It is a country of rare beauty to those who appreciate desert scenery. Mr. Judd describes the sandstone as varying in color from a light yellow to a blood red, and the shadows in the canyon range from hazy blue to deep purple, with occasional patches of green marking the rare vegetation. —Detroit News.

Reassuring "Miss Jones"

As they boarded the train they had every look of being a bridal couple. The young man carefully escorted the young woman to a seat, while the interested passengers smiled indulgently.

Then, extending his hand to the supposed bride, he said, in a very loud voice, "Well, Miss Jones, the train is about to pull out, I wish you a very pleasant journey," and, getting his hat, he hurried off the train.

But the young woman seemed nervous. By and by she called the porter, and in a whisper gave him some mysterious message. He came back in a moment and said in a voice audible to every one: "Yo' all right, ma'am. He's in de smokin' compartment." —Harper's Magazine.

Not a Crime, a Miracle

It was very cold, but still the angler sat patiently by the side of the stream, waiting for the bite that did not come. An aged man approached and took up a strategic position behind him. "Are these private waters, my man?" asked the angler, looking over his shoulder.

The aged man shook his head. "No," he said. "Then it won't be a crime if I land a fish?" pursued the sportsman. Again the aged man shook his head, till his gray locks fluttered in the breeze.

"No," he said. "It would be a miracle!"

White to Prevail Next Two Seasons

Fashion Writer at Winter Resorts Tells of Modes in Limelight.

Writing of the styles that promise to prevail this spring and summer, a fashion correspondent in the New York Times, who has made the rounds of winter resorts, says:

Although this is a season of beautiful colors, white is of course worn extravagantly in every possible form and fabric for every sort of occasion. Nothing is ever more youthful and lovely and flattering, and nothing else so well forgives any slighting in quality or workmanship. The very simplest frock of all white, so it be correct in style, with proper shoes, hat and other accompaniments, is always refreshing. This season's frocks in white are a delight and their variety is amazing.

As sports suit with the trim little skirt plaited or flaring, tailored, the conventional blouse and coat is the first and most stable item in the wardrobe. This is severely plain this season, of flannel, faille, roshanara or fine twill, and the silhouette is absolutely curveless. The overblouse, which is a part of the suit, is a simple thing of silk or crepe, held into a wide hip belt, and its sleeves are long, short, or none at all.

The outfit beloved of the flapper and copied by many a senior is the sports skirt and sweater of entertaining design. These, with flat beach shoes and a cloche or tan top, put the young woman in the most becoming and comfortable harness for the day's contests and diversions.

Quite as popular are the one-piece frocks, opening in the front, with wide collar turning away from the neck, long or short sleeves, belt and pockets. Pockets, in fact, appear to be de rigueur on all the morning dresses, white or colored, and they add a note of tailored smartness—even to the silk frocks. Small buttons and stitched bands also are used on some of these informal dresses.

Next to white, the gentle shades, something warmer than the pastels, in blue, green, maize, apricot, salmon and peach, are lovely in the one-piece frocks. In some of the latest models white is embroidered in one of these colors—a one-piece gown of white poplin, for example, trimmed with bands of needlework or stitched embroidery in color.

Contrasts Are Startling.

In occasional models these contrasts are startling. In one the tunic blouse is of maize-colored crepe—the flounce, knee length, of white crepe, in fine plaits—and the square neck and wristbands of the long sleeves are trimmed with embroidery in maize silk.

A striking model in the one-piece gown is made of a fine, heavy quality white flat crepe. An arabesque pattern of black cloth cut in wide strips is appliqued over the entire frock. With this is offered a parasol of white silk, on which a great wide-winged blackbird is stamped, the handle and frame being of light bamboo; a cloche of white taffeta and straw, and shoes of white kid with narrow buckled straps of patent leather.

A decided novelty in the white dresses is one of muslin embroidery and silks. The upper part of the frock is a tunic of eyelet all-over embroidery, cut in Russian blouse style and almost knee length. The straight sleeves are short to the elbow, and about them and the edge of the tunic is a stitched band of white silk of which the foundation slip is made and finished with a deep flounce of narrow plaits.

Other unusual combinations of material are shown in these softer daytime frocks—silk and flannel, cloth and crepe, and embroidery on any sort of fabric.

A fashionable model is a little slip-over sleeveless dress of coarse open-woven white canvas of square mesh. The side of the bodice is open to the waistline, meeting under the arm, and the neck is cut in a deep V. Under this is worn a shirt of white silk, crepe de chine or fine batiste, and with

GIRL WORKING HARD TO BECOME LINGUIST

Italian Woman Earns Tuition for Schooling.

Philadelphia.—If you were eighteen years old and wanted to be a teacher of languages, would you be willing to attend school eight hours a day, assist at home with two children and do fine embroidery in your spare time to earn money?

Most of us would not—but to Aurora Unti, young Italian girl who has been in America only one year, such a strenuous program of activity is merely a good day's work.

There is no touch of martyrdom in the attitude of this young Italian girl. She accepts her role as naturally as the American "deb" accepts her daily round of gaiety. She is a special student in the William Penn high school, where she is studying English and Latin. She has learned to speak English fluently in the year she has been here. She also speaks Italian and French, and can read Spanish.

Writes of Italy.

In the Christmas number of Onas, the school magazine, Aurora wrote a creditable article on "Christmas Bells in Italy," in which she said: "Christmas in Italy has something of particular beauty, of poetry, of fascination, or mystic quality that it is impossible to explain, and that other feasts have not." Further on she describes the ringing of the Christmas bells in Italy.

"You begin slowly with a detached ringing, then, one after another united in the concert, and the sound augmented into a crescendo, rapid, vibrating, sonorous, full of inexpressible, supremely beautiful music. You wait for a moment, and then go back to your song with renewed vigor and force."

Ten years ago, Aurora's father came to America from Italy. A year later her mother joined him here, while Aurora remained in a convent. One year ago Aurora's mother went back to Italy and brought her to America. The young student, intent on her aim to be a teacher of languages, applied immediately to the William Penn high school for special work. She does exquisite embroidery, with tiny fine stitches, to earn money to defray her expenses, and in her spare time she assists her mother in caring for the two younger children.

Girl Loves America.

"I love America—it is so quiet here," the young Italian girl said. Upon questioning she explained that one does not get shot in this country for having a political opinion.

"Over in Italy we hear continually of one killed here and one killed there. This is the consequences of the war and must be expected, I guess. There is one thing about America—you are cosmopolite. In Europe a man is German, or Italian, or English, but that is narrow. In America, a man is all of these and yet he is distinct—an American."

"In America people have to work if they want to retain self-respect and the respect of their friends. In Italy if a man loafs it is not considered shameful, but in America a man who does not work is looked down upon."

Says Schools Are Best.

"But your wonderful schools are the best of all," she said, enthusiastically, her face lighting up with a smile. "When I first arrived here I said to my mother, 'Oh, why didn't you let me come before?' In Italy the schools are always needing something, but in America your schools are complete and large and comfortable. I don't see how any one could want to skip school in America."

Meanwhile, this young student is working slowly toward her goal to be a teacher of languages. Her parents are in sympathy and accord with her aims, and allow her to attend school instead of working, hoping that through their encouragement and her own application she will one day realize her ambition.

Boy, Ousted From House, Routs Dog From Kennel

Norwalk, Conn.—A case in which a boy excluded from home ejected a dog from his kennel and slept in it was brought to the attention of the Juvenile court. Weeks ago Joseph Done, twelve, of Mahackemo Heights, returning home late at night, found the house locked up. The lad called the family dog from its kennel and spent the night there. This happened frequently afterward, neighbors told the court.

During recent cold nights the dog has slept across the entrance, helping to keep the boy from suffering from the night air.

The infant grandchild of former President Roosevelt has the same birthday as her sister, Sarah Alden who is three.

Gets Fishing License at 70

Jamestown, Pa.—A fishing license was issued recently to Mrs. M. J. Mickelson, seventy years old, Sugar Grove, south of Jamestown. Mrs. Mickelson has had a license every year since the licensing system began. She is an expert fisherwoman and her advice on Chautauqua lake fishing is regularly sought by many Eastern vacationists.

Cleopatra Not a Vamp;
Was Model Housewife

Egyptian women's costumes in the days of King Tut-Ankh-Amen actually resembled "ill-fitting nightgowns" more than anything else, and their famous "vamps" were nothing more than model housewives, Arthur Weigall, formerly inspector general of Egyptian antiquities, told an audience in Minneapolis the other day, says the Minneapolis Journal.

Weigall was with Howard Carter on the expedition which discovered the tomb of King Tut-Ankh-Amen, and told of the discoveries as he saw them.

He verbally painted the early Egyptians as a "fascinating and picturesque people, a young people filled with the joy of living."

"There never was a more mistaken idea than that Cleopatra was a vamp," Weigall said. "She was just a little bit of a soul, and in this day would be considered too domestic. She thought she was married to Julius Caesar, and later on she also thought she was the wife of Mark Antony. But she learned eventually, that she was the wife of neither, and from the most reliable sources we learn she was terribly shocked at the duplicity of these two men."

"I insist she was a model housewife because she had a family of six children and was devoted to them."

"As for the kind of costumes that are called 'King Tut' today, they were unknown at that time. Women's costumes then were positively hideous. Women today would not wear them, and, if they did, would probably land in jail."

Wants 'Em 'Eliminated

"Of course, if you don't care for those towers," explained the architect, "we can easily have them eliminated."

Mr. Bullion-Bagge furrowed his brows and puffed out his cheeks. Then he looked up from the plans.

"H'm!" he grunted. "They look real handsome as they are, but if you think 'eliminatin' 'em will make 'em any 'andsomer, then, I sez, let's 'ave 'em 'eliminated."

USED MANY MODES OF TRANSPORTATION

Suburbanite Has Exciting
Time in One Day.

"The younger generation, and probably most of the older people who have gone about to any extent in recent years, take modern traveling facilities as a matter of course and give little or no thought to the marvels of transportation today," reflected the suburbanite, "and most of us go through our daily trips to business and elsewhere so mechanically that we fail to realize fully how remarkably diverse are the present-day means of passenger conveyance."

"A man will think nothing nowadays of riding in a variety of vehicles in the course of a single day, from an elevator to a subway, being carried along the surface of the ground, above it or under the surface, and utilizing several kinds of power. But an experience I had not long ago made me realize more than most of us do, or than I probably would have otherwise, how wonderfully diverse are the means of travel available to the people of today."

"In one day I rode on the surface of the earth, under the ground and the Hudson river as well, and also flew above the earth, being transported in trolleys, electric trains, steam trains, automobiles and an airplane, and employed the advantages of three types of power which play such important parts in the daily life of most of us—electric, gasoline and steam."

"I started out in the morning from my home in northern New Jersey and walked a short distance to a trolley line, then boarding a trolley car in which I was carried, by electric power, over the surface of the ground to a Hudson tube station. There I got on an electric train which transported me along the surface. Later I changed to another which took me through an uncovered depression, sped along a subterranean passage, through a tunnel beneath the Hudson river and to the Pennsylvania station, New York."

"There I changed to another train which traveled underground for a distance, being drawn at first by electric power. Afterward it rose to the surface and, the locomotive having been changed, took me the rest of the distance to Mineola, L. I., above the ground—by steam power."

"At the railroad station in Mineola I got in a taxicab, which, by still another kind of power—gasoline—transported me to Mitchell field."

"There I hopped off in an airplane which, also using gasoline, of course, bore me back over much of the same route I had followed to the field, with some deviations; soared over the community in which I live—almost above my own house—and then flew back to its starting point."

"Later I returned to my home by the same kinds of conveyances I had employed on my trip to the flying field, impressed with the marvelous transportation facilities available to modern people as I only could have been by such an experience."

Rialto Bridge

The Rialto bridge is a famous marble bridge across the Grand canal in Venice, built by Giovanni da Ponte in 1590. It consists of a single arch, 90 feet wide and 24 feet high, and rests upon 12,000 piles. The name Rialto is derived from Rivo-Alto, one of the islands on which Venice is built. This island was long the financial and commercial center of the city, and gave its name to the bridge that connects it with the mainland. There was situated the exchange; and it is probably to that building (and not to the bridge) that Shakespeare refers in his comedy of "The Merchant of Venice."

"Signor Antonio, many a time and oft, in the Rialto you have rated me about my money and my usances; Still I have borne it with a patient shrug; For suffering is the badge of all our tribe."

Bell Shattered Windows

A church in Cincinnati, Ohio, claims to have the largest bell in America and, next to one in Moscow, the largest one in the world. This bell is 10 feet in diameter and 12 feet high and it weighs 30,000 pounds.

When it was hung a number of years ago its deep tones shattered windows in nearby buildings, and threatened to shake the supporting tower to pieces. Since then no one has dared to ring it.

It is sounded by tapping it with a hammer. Sounds thus produced are no louder than those from smaller bells. Rung in the regular manner its peals, in the tone of E-flat, could be heard over a radius of 15 miles.

Rough and Rocky

Tourist—I thought you said this was a good trail, a path of romance?
Tomaso—Well, it is so, ain't it?

TRYING TO SNEAK
INTO U. S. RISKY

Many Killed and Robbed
by Smugglers.

Pity the poor alien, who, oppressed by circumstances in his native land decides to come to America, only to find that the quota assigned his nation under the law of the United States has been filled; for of such is the horde of victims preyed upon by the alien-smugglers of Mexico, freebooters, who vie with the famous pirates in blood-thirstiness and unscrupulousness.

The alien who entrusts himself to the mercy of this crew, which agrees for a stipulated fee, to place him upon American soil, has risked not alone capture by the United States immigration officials and consequent deportation to his land of origin, but his very life thereby.

Judging by reports reaching the border from the seaports of Mexico, an eager flock of immigrants constantly floods the towns of the Mexican littoral, each anxious to invade the land of promise beyond the Rio Grande.

Operate From Tampico.

Tampico, because of its comparative nearness to the border long has been the favorite landing place for these people; similarly it has been the "hang-out" of several desperate gangs of cut-throats, masked under the guise of alien-smugglers.

The alien handing himself over to the smuggler pays high for the service that is promised, even guaranteed, but which all too often fails to be delivered. The fee is based largely upon what the immigrant may have with him. If he is incautious and displays much money, the fee will be as near the sum total as possible. Of course, there is a minimum fee and without considerable ready cash no alien could count upon starting his trek for the border.

A few, a very few, actually do reach American soil and the comparative safety of the larger cities, where, if they are lucky, they have the opportunity to hide indefinitely.

Many are caught and turned back to their lands by the American immigration authorities, but many never reach American soil, or if they do, "lay low" to such good purpose that their relatives or friends, waiting anxiously in Mexico, fail ever to hear from them again.

If they go by water, launches are used in the effort. Often their objective is the lower Texas coast, between Brownsville and Corpus Christi, where the practically deserted shore line offers excellent chance of landing without apprehension. If the alien is wise, he insists upon going ashore near Galveston, for the shores between Brownsville and Corpus Christi are sparsely populated and there is excellent chance that the alien will perish of hunger or thirst, or be compelled to go into some small town, where his appearance would lead to quick arrest.

Many Have Disappeared.

Once they pass Galveston and reach Houston, and lie low for a time, they have a chance to enter the interior through the machinations of an "underground railroad" declared by immigration authorities to be operated from headquarters in New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago, St. Louis and other large cities of the East and Middle West. A few even are sent to the Pacific coast, it is said, but not many.

At times launch loads of would-be entrants, and particularly Chinese, have disappeared. The smugglers returning have maintained stoutly that they landed the men on the Texas coast and left them there as they had agreed. But waiting friends or relatives never received word from the men and feared the worst.

The regularity of disappearance of aliens who, singly or in small groups, tried to run the international boundary guard long ago led to suspicion of foul play. This was clinched to certainty when a few months ago a party of six Italians was set upon by the Mexicans who had been hired to smuggle them across the Rio Grande. Five died, while the sixth, aided by darkness, escaped. Two Mexicans were executed by a firing squad for this murder.

Radio Craze Affects
2,000,000 Britishers

More than 2,200 miles of aerial wire have been erected in Great Britain in the last twelve months, so much has the radio craze seized the public. It is estimated by officials of the British Broadcasting company that 2,000,000 people are entertained daily at a cost of a farthing each.

The company claims that wireless has stimulated industry considerably. It has necessitated the opening up of a new subhead in the directory for "wireless supplies dealers."

Five hundred thousand dollars has been paid to the entertainment industry in salaries, fees and copyright royalties, and large numbers of engineers and studio staffs are given employment at the various sending stations.

Sugar From Bulrushes

German and Austrian scientists have come forward with the statement that bulrushes and certain other kinds of water grasses and reeds contain sugar, and possibly in sufficient quantity for commercial use. A content in some cases as high as 25 per cent is mentioned. Plans are in hand to start a factory.

AMUSEMENTS

When "Columbus" the new Pathe film, is shown at the Met theater Monday, patrons of that popular playhouse will have their first opportunity to see what historical experts think is as accurate a picture of Christopher Columbus and the great event of his discovery of the new world as it is humanly possible to make. It was produced under the supervision of the Council's Committee of Yale University Press.

In "Columbus" much stress is laid on the strong character of the discoverer. His hopes and fears and struggles are brought home as they never could be in books, and it is easy to understand the sort of courage and persistence that brought him success.

The ship scenes, were made in Chicago, where there is a fine replica of Columbus' ship, the Santa Maria, which carried him across the ocean. This ship was made for the World's fair of 1893 and is considered a perfect example of the sailing vessels of the fifteenth century.

The minutest care was given to every detail of costuming. H. A. Ogden, artist of authority on historical costumes, designed them. Just as carefully selected was the banner of Spain which Columbus plants on the shore. There were a number of official banners at the time, but it was decided that Columbus probably carried to the new world the "Flag of the Green Cross," bearing the cross and the letters F and I, standing for Ferdinand and Isabella. Even the manner in which Queen Isabella's gown falls in folds is historically correct.

Tarleton Organization Held Interesting Meeting With Mrs. Shoemaker.

The regular meeting of Tarleton W. C. T. U. was held Friday afternoon at the home of Miss Mary Shoemaker. The attendance was good and an interesting program was given. The leaflet, "Prayer for Primary Elections," was read by Mrs. Helen Zaring. We must pray and work for the nomination at the primaries of the right men. Let every Christian stand for the abstinence as well as prohibition and, as true soldiers of the cross press that battle and follow that flag.

"The Why of Americanization" was read by Mrs. Chloe Hiatt. These papers were all followed by discussions. Eight new members were added to the roll. Arrangements were made to hold an all day institute in June at the home of the president, Miss Mary Porter. The next meeting, May 2, will be held at the home of Mrs. Sarah Hiatt.

WHEN DAUGHTER DISOBEYED DAD

By MARJORY H. MORROW

(©, 1924, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

MINNIE was a small-town girl. She was pretty in a timid, retiring way, but for some reason or other nobody had ever looked at her more than once. Therefore, when Ed Dowling from Boston, gay, debonaire, "the glass of fashion and the mold of form," began to drop in of an evening, she was little short of ill with ecstasy.

"Come on out on the river tonight," he said, stopping by the little white gate one noon as he was passing. "I've hired a canoe from Hi Rogers and we can jazz around in the moonlight."

Minnie's heart gave a great jump, but she seemed to see her father's rigid countenance and hear his stern voice as he looked about the dinner table.

"I ab-so-lute-ly forbid any of you children going out upon the river after dark. It is not safe. Under no condition are you to disobey this rule. You will please not forget it." His crisp tones echoed in Minnie's head while she heard Ed say:

"What's the matter, girlie? Don't you want to come? I never get a chance to be with you alone, you know."

Minnie swallowed hard, looked up at him appealingly, and answered:

"I—I'm supposed to go to the Sunday school picnic at Laurel grove tonight."

"Righto! We'll go there and slip away. Come on—dear."

Minnie blushed furiously, and capitulated.

"Attababy!" cried Ed, joyously. "We'll have cushions n'everything. Don't forget."

Sleepy frogs croaked in the reeds. A wheezy night hawk sent down his plaintive call. The river was a sheet of silver under the risen moon. Ed and Minnie drifted idly among the gleaming ripples. At times he thrummed a ukulele and sang softly in a low, clear baritone. Minnie was in the seventh heaven.

"Jumping Jupiter!" gasped Ed, suddenly, looking at his watch. "Do you know what time it is? It's 11:30 o'clock!"

Minnie's dream came tumbling about her ears. The frogs seemed now to be croaking a warning: "Go home! Go home!"

"I'll—I'll get in the back way," she faltered. "Oh, dear, let's hurry!"

Haste usually makes waste, and sometimes it makes worse things.

This time it made Minnie catch her foot in the gunwale of the canoe and plunge noisily into the dark water. Ed fished her out with more expedition than skill, and held the wet, shivering little body quite close for a minute. He said nothing, but Minnie felt at once thrilled and comforted.

A long trail of water straggled along the silent street to the gate of Minnie's house. There Ed left her, squeezing her hand encouragingly.

"Will be around tomorrow," he whispered into the dark.

Minnie stole up the back stairs quietly enough, but was faced with the problem of what to do with her wet clothes. At last she tiptoed up into the attic and hung them over the rainy-weather lines. As she crept into bed she felt sure that her secret was safe.

"Minnie, dear," said her mother the next morning, "dress quietly and don't make any noise coming down to breakfast. Your father had one of his headaches last night and wishes to sleep late."

After breakfast a whistle shrilled outside, and Minnie hastened out on the porch, bungalow apron and all, to greet her cavalier of the night before. He stood looking up at her, his eyes soft and brooding in the morning light, the elm trees making patterns all over his neat gray suit. Minnie smiled shyly down, a dish towel clasped in one small hand, and whispered:

"No one heard me come in last night. Everything's all right. I hung my wet clothes in the attic, and—"

"What does this mean?" suddenly demanded a terrible voice from the doorway. Minnie turned and beheld her father in a bathrobe and nightcap, holding in his shaking hands a dilapidated bundle of crushed organdy and lace!

"This morning," began the old man, nearly choking with rage, "this morning I woke and found—and found my ceiling leaking!"

"Drops of water were falling on my nose, my face was wet—wet! Dare you laugh, sir? I believe you are to blame for this. What have you done to my daughter? Come here and I'll wring your impudent young neck!"

Then Ed Dowling proved that all the virtues are not country-bred. He stepped quietly up beside Minnie, his face a mixture of profound regret and proud possessiveness, slipped his arm around her waist and said:

"I am very sorry, sir. It is, as you say, entirely my fault. I took your daughter out on the river, and unfortunately she fell in, and her damp clothes in the attic, also, unfortunately, over your son's head. I have asked your daughter to be my wife and wish at the earliest opportunity, to consult you on the matter. May I come around this afternoon, sir?"

Minnie gasped in astonishment and joy. Her father grunted, too amazed for the moment to speak!

"Thank you, sir," said Ed respectfully. "At about three o'clock, then. Good-morning."

Sowing Naked Oats Is Not Advisable

Not Able to Compete With Best Common Variety.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

During the last fifty or sixty years, attractive advertisements have led farmers from time to time to try to grow naked or hull-less oats. The very fact that the naked oat has gained no foothold in American agriculture after repeated attempts to exploit it is sufficient proof of its inability to compete with the best common or hulled oats.

Until a few years ago the variety commonly exploited was the Chinese Hull-less, which is now found growing on sterile mountain sides at high altitudes in northern and western China. Recently, however, some new hybrid varieties have been developed by crossing the Chinese Hull-less on the common oat. Of these, the Liberty Hull-less, which was developed in Canada, has attracted the most attention. This new variety of naked oats has been grown on several of the field stations where the office of cereal investigations, bureau of plant industry, United States Department of Agriculture, is conducting experiments with oats. At no station has the yield of the Liberty Hull-less compared favorably with that of the best common varieties. In addition to being inferior in yield it is very susceptible to smut. It is necessary to treat the seed every year in order to avoid almost complete loss by smut.

While there is a small demand for oat kernels without hulls for feeding squabs and young chickens, it apparently will be better economy to buy ordinary oats from which the hulls have been removed than to try to grow hull-less or naked oats. For feeding farm stock, except hogs, the hull usually is considered an advantage, rather than a detriment, as it lightens the ration and increases its bulk. Not unfrequently, smut-resistant and otherwise better varieties of naked oats are developed, and available will it be possible to recommend this type of oat as a safe crop for the farmer to grow.

Guineas Good Protection Against Hawks and Crows

Guineas are kept on many farms as a protection against chicken hawks, crows, etc., in the daytime, and as a night alarm against predatory persons and animals.

A flock of six to eight breeding birds is about right for the average farm. These should be replaced about every two years, at which age their usefulness as breeders practically ends.

Guineas usually mate in pairs, although a male will sometimes mate with two or three females. Better results in hatching will be obtained, however, if equal numbers of males and females are kept. During the breeding season the male will often be found sitting on the nest in the absence of the hen, and with her if the nest is large.

Feeding of Sugar Beets Is Not Economical Plan

Roots are palatable, succulent and laxative but are low in protein and calcium. The sugar beet is one of the most palatable of the root crops fed to swine. Trials, however, have shown that the value of the sugar beet for fattening swine is so low that it is a very uneconomical feed. Occasionally it may prove profitable to turn the hogs into the field and harvest the beets in that manner, but as a general thing the feeding of sugar beets is not economical.

Free of Tuberculosis

There are now in the United States, according to a statement by the Department of Agriculture, more than 33,000 herds of cattle fully accredited by the government as being free of tuberculosis. Indiana has the largest number of these herds, 4,160. Wisconsin stands next with 3,967, and Minnesota third with 3,073.

Farm Hints

Ice harvested in winter spells sweet cream in summer.

We must preserve the birds if we would save humankind.

Test every ear of corn, if you have saved your seed corn. If not, buy only tested seed of high germination.

A problem soon to be undertaken by the Department of Agriculture is to standardize grades of live stock, meats and wool.

Speltz (white emmer) will give good yields on a fertile piece of black clay loam. This crop is highly esteemed as a poultry feed.

Acid phosphate is such a little wonderworker that many farmers say that, with manure, it's all the plant food their land needs.

With things so high, the farmer who puts out a good garden for next summer is likely to be well repaid even if not a thing is sold out of it.

Farming is an individual occupation. Whether a man can follow it or not depends upon himself alone. In this respect, farming is not different from other open occupations.

Scientists and the Child

Thomas A. Edison said in a recent interview:

"A scientist's mind is like a child's. It asks all sorts of ridiculous and impossible questions, then answers them. The scientist confronts every phenomenon as the little boy confronted the fat man at dinner. Studying the fat man's stomach carefully, he said:

"Is your tum-tum so big because you eat so much, or do you eat so much because your tum-tum is so big?"

Sowing Naked Oats Is Not Advisable

Not Able to Compete With Best Common Variety.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

During the last fifty or sixty years, attractive advertisements have led farmers from time to time to try to grow naked or hull-less oats. The very fact that the naked oat has gained no foothold in American agriculture after repeated attempts to exploit it is sufficient proof of its inability to compete with the best common or hulled oats.

Until a few years ago the variety commonly exploited was the Chinese Hull-less, which is now found growing on sterile mountain sides at high altitudes in northern and western China. Recently, however, some new hybrid varieties have been developed by crossing the Chinese Hull-less on the common oat. Of these, the Liberty Hull-less, which was developed in Canada, has attracted the most attention. This new variety of naked oats has been grown on several of the field stations where the office of cereal investigations, bureau of plant industry, United States Department of Agriculture, is conducting experiments with oats. At no station has the yield of the Liberty Hull-less compared favorably with that of the best common varieties. In addition to being inferior in yield it is very susceptible to smut. It is necessary to treat the seed every year in order to avoid almost complete loss by smut.

While there is a small demand for oat kernels without hulls for feeding squabs and young chickens, it apparently will be better economy to buy ordinary oats from which the hulls have been removed than to try to grow hull-less or naked oats. For feeding farm stock, except hogs, the hull usually is considered an advantage, rather than a detriment, as it lightens the ration and increases its bulk. Not until high-yielding, smut-resistant and otherwise better varieties of naked oats are developed, and available will it be possible to recommend this type of oat as a safe crop for the farmer to grow.

Columbus, April 7.—Dr. John E. Monger, director of the state health department, announced that improvement of sanitary conditions at Indian Lake, Logan county, is to be undertaken at once. He said the cleanup program at Buckeye Lake is well under way and that the department engineers will devote a large part of the spring and summer to cleaning up other Ohio summer resorts. Lake, reservoir and river resorts are to be included, he said.

"Ohioans, in the aggregate, travel thousands of miles and spend millions of dollars in vacation trips to summer resorts no better than those right here at home. All that is necessary is to clean them up; make them safe for the cottager, the camper, the hotel patron, the weekend fisherman; and once this is done much of the money will be spent in Ohio, and the health of these summer sojourners can be kept under safeguard by the state," Dr. Monger said.

The program at Indian Lake will include the filling of a number of wells, including two at Russell's Point, and the improvement of other wells about the lake. The department also contemplates the installation of a public water supply.

College Instructor Finds Mixer Earns More Money

Who has the greater income after college years—the scholar or the mixer? How rates the student of chemistry? One answer is given by an instructor in the University of Michigan. He has prepared a sort of alumni who's who and for how much.

The scope of his inquiry is not known, but his compilation points to the conclusion that in the ten-year period since graduation, high scholarship men have reached an average annual income of $3,000, with men prominent in extra-curriculum activities placed at an average of $10,000 a year. A word of explanation goes along with the figures. Says the instructor:

The statistics do not prove that the men of the highest grade are incapable of earning big money—they merely show these men do not prefer lines of work which are most lucrative.

So we conclude that those who wooed the lamp in college are rewarded in the measure set by their choice of career, and that those who wooed other flames have come to a more golden fortune. Scholars or mixers—young men in college all have their oil cans. Some there be who burn their oil, and some there be who merely spread it, but oil's well that ends well.—Nation's Business.

Age of the Sun

The age of the sun has been fixed at something between two billion and three billion years by Prof. Walter Nernst, after researches announced at a meeting in Berlin of the Society for Industrial Progress. The estimates are based in part on the rate of decomposition of radio-active elements, and in part on deductions from Einstein's theory of relativity concerning the relation between mass and energy. Early estimates set the age of the sun as low as ten million years, but geologists showed this was too short to allow for the erosion and other changes observed in the crust of the earth since it became solid. The radioactive decomposition of uranium to lead is a more accurate cosmic clock, and this indicates that the solid crust of the earth has existed for at least one and one-half billion years. According to Nernst, the sun, while getting past middle age, is still good for 400,000,000 years, after which a crust will form on its surface and life such as we know it will cease upon the earth.

FILIPINOS SPEAK ENGLISH LANGUAGE

Spanish Traditions Dying Out in Philippine Homes.

Washington.—American occupation of the Philippine islands for a period of less than twenty-five years has virtually eliminated the Spanish language as well as Spanish traditions from the archipelago, according to Manuel Roxas, head of the Philippine commission now in Washington working for independence.

Centuries of Spanish control had made Castilian the tongue of business, industry, the courts and social and religious life throughout the islands. Today, in considerably less than a generation, Spanish, both the language and the tradition, are tremendously on the decline, Mr. Roxas said recently before the senate committee on territories and insular possessions. The Spanish influence has receded and is no longer of importance in the life of the people.

"Whereas, the Japanese in their country have adopted English as a commercial language," the speaker declared, "we have gone farther and taken it into our homes. We use English in our social life, and so great has been the spread of English in the islands that we conducted our election campaign almost entirely in English. "Even the Spanish priests grant the advance of the English language and the American tradition, and bow before it. Whether we are independent or not, English will be the language of the islands, not so much for its commercial value as for its power as a unifying influence, as a means of overcoming the dispersion of our people through the speaking of dialects.

"Where once Spanish books had a large sale in the Philippines today the sales are almost nothing.

"I myself, for example, have not read a Spanish book in 15 years."

U. S. Places Ban on Certain Indian Dances

Washington.—The Indian dance controversy led Secretary Work recently to render an opinion as to what dances should be and should not be permitted.

In answer to a petition of the San Udefonso Pueblo of the Tawa tribe of New Mexico, requesting that its members be permitted to continue their ceremonial dances without interference, the government secretary declared he did not disapprove of Indian dances as a whole and that "nothing is farther from the thought of those who are the guardians of the Indians than to interfere with any dance that has a religious significance or those given for pleasure or entertainment which are not degrading.

"There are certain practices, however," the secretary added, "which are against the laws of nature or moral laws, and all who wish to perpetuate the integrity of their race must refrain from them.

"The Indians cannot afford," he said, "to contribute to their own spiritual and physical downfall by indulging in practices which appeal to animal emotions only."

Artist Was Unaware of Rare Painting's Value

Los Angeles, Cal.—An authentic Titian, owned for 33 years by an artist who never in all that time suspected its true worth, has been purchased by Linwood M. Andrews, Los Angeles art collector, for $100,000, says the Los Angeles Times.

Adolph Brugler of Santa Barbara, who owned the painting, the Times says, bought it at an auction in Florence, Italy, while he was studying art there in his youth, paying for it the equivalent of $150 in American money.

Experts have pronounced it genuine and identified it as "The Madonna, Holy Child and Titian's Daughter, Lavinia," long believed to have been lost with other works of art in a fire that swept Madrid.

Ultra-Violet Ray Used to Make or Reduce Fat

Paris.—The ultra-violet ray is equally effective as a weight reducer or producer, according to Doctors Livet and Vautieh, who described to the Academy of Medicine the excellent results obtained when the rays were applied to a number of obese patients, bringing about a loss in weight of from eight to twenty pounds after thirty applications.

The same rays, used to tone up debilitated patients, caused them to put on flesh.

Foot Sewed on Again
